So I'm finally getting around to doing a front to back read-through of The Book of Five Rings. I've probably read the entirety of the book over the years in the form of bits and pieces from different translations but never read through the thing properly. From doing this I've noticed that there's a huge difference between different translations.

"The Book of Five Rings" seems to be even more pragmatic. It's all about how to kill your enemy as quick as possible, even describing that you should stab their face. There were three things that I found valuable when it comes to philosophy. And maybe a dozen of things that are valuable when it comes to applying it to real life.
