With the DHT-487DV, Denon takes a different approach to the home theater-in-a-box segment. While most manufacturers cram amps, processor, DVD/CD players and tuners into one chassis and then add chintzy speakers and a lame subwoofer to the package, Denon has chosen to offer a full-featured AV receiver and a standalone DVD player bundled with 5 speakers and a powered subwoofer for their offering.

About two months ago I helped my cousin get his HT set up. He has a Denon AVR-S700W that he bought at Best Buy, I think an open box special. A couple of weeks later he called to report the display had gone black. Checking with BB, they sent him to Denon who said it's still under warranty but he has to ship it to NJ. He's still sitting on it.
